Testing Options

West Virginia University (WVU) is committed to providing reasonable and effective accommodations to qualified individuals with disabilities. All WVU students requesting disability-related accommodations must register with the WVU Office of Accessibility Services (OAS) and provide up-to-date, appropriate, and objective documentation that clearly substantiates a significant functional impairment as well as providing evidence of the need for accommodations. A significant functional impairment means that a student's ability to perform a major life activity is below average compared to other persons of that age.

OAS does not refer students directly to medical or psychological service providers. Students may submit documentation from any provider of their choice. Documentation standards may be found on the OAS website.

In some instances, documentation supporting cognitive, learning, and psychological diagnoses may need to be updated if it does not sufficiently substantiate an impairment for which accommodations are being requested. The following is a partial list of some offices in the Morgantown area that may be able to assist with psychological evaluations. OAS does not specifically endorse or specially recommend any of the organizations listed below.
